Pick of the week

With the prices that melons are commanding these days, you want them to be special, and many of them aren't. But the Dulcinea Farms melons now on display at local supermarkets are worth checking out.

The PureHeart miniature seedless watermelons are heavy, very sweet and crisp-textured, with the thinnest of rinds; the Tuscan-Style cantaloupes are intensely aromatic and juicy, with a compact seed pocket that means lots of sweet flesh per melon — perfect for serving as a hot-weather appetizer with prosciutto, serrano or speck ham. The cantaloupes have deep grooves that turn from dark green to golden cream as the melon ripens.

The melons are widely available at local supermarkets, including Kroger, Tom Thumb, Albertsons, Central Market and Market Street in Colleyville; the watermelons sell in most stores for $3.99 and the cantaloupes for $2.99 to $3.99.
